ALL'S WELLE.

BY HARRIET M'RUET RIMBALL. The day is ended. Ere I sink to sleep My weary spirit seeks repose in Thine: Pather! lorgive my trespin ses, and keep

This little life of mine. With loving kindness curtain thou my bed, And cool in rest my barning pilgrim-feet;
hy pardon be the pillow for my head-so shall my sleep be sweet. At peace with all the world, dear Lord, and Thee, No fears my soul's an wavering faith can shake All's well! whichever side the grave for me The morning light may break!

ANOTHER FIREMAN'S RIOT-SEVERAL PERSONS SEVERBLY INJURED. - Before daylight yesterday morning a rope-walk, near Moya-mensing avenue and Tasker street, was set on fire, seemingly with the intention of drawing certain fire companies to that locality. The Franklin Engine Company drew their carriage down Third street, and when near Greenwich an attack was made upon them. A number of pistols were fired, which drove the members from the rope, and forced them to leave the carriage in possession of the attacking party. It was then hurried to a lot near Front and Dickerson, street. Dtckerson streets, and maliciously broken. Police officers afterwards got possession of it and returned it to the owners. In the attack made upon the Franklin two of the members received flesh wounds. One was shot in the hand and the other in the arm. No arrests

Heary Gentz, who is deaf and dumb, and to the Franklin, was shot in the head and arm. He was taken to the Hospital. The Chief Engineer of the Fire Department examined into the matter yesterday, and came to the conclusion to suspend the Franklin and Shiffer companies for the present.

INQUEST .- An inquest was held on Saturday on the body of Charles Steinmetz, who died from the effects of a stab inflicted in a quarrel with a lad named Francis James.

Several witnesses testified that a game of base ball was being played on the ground on Williamson street, near Second, when Francis James and several companions appeared at the entrance to the grounds. The deceased a-ked one of the young men if that (pointing to one of them) was James, and on receiving an affirma-tive answer he struck and kicked James, and both fell to the ground, the deceased being on the top. When the two were parted it found that Steinmetz was stabbed. He taken home, where he died on the 29th ultimo. No one saw the plow inflicted, but a witness stated that he saw a knife in the hand of James before he was struck.

The jury rendered a verdict that the deceased came to his death from a stab inflicted by James. The accused was committed to answer.

DROWNED .- The Coroner held an inquest on Saturday on the body of James C. Noble. eight years old, who was drowned in the Delaware, at Shackamaxon street wharf. The parents of the lad reside at No. 121 Allen street. Frederick Lakemeyer, proprietor of the Smith's Island restaurant, and of a lager beer saloon at Carter's alley and Exchange place, was drowned on Saturday night in the Dela-ware, below Chesnut street. Mr. Lakemeyer was about to cross to the island in a small boat, accompanied by a son of the late pro-prictor of the island, and in stepping into it he missed his footing and dropped into the water. Young Smith leaped after him, and made every effort to save him, but was unsuccessful. De-ceased was about fifty years old, well known among the German residents of the city, and much esteemed. The body was not recovered.

LIGHT FINGERED .- A young man, who gave the name of James Mason, was arrested on Saturday evening, on one of the Fourth street cars, in the act of stealing the watch of Mr. John Williams, who resides in Catharine street, below Third. Mr. Williams discovered the theft before the thief could slip the watch to a com-panion, and seized the thief, holding on to him. The fellow then threw the watch out of the window. He was handed over to the Fifth Ward officers, and had a hearing yesterday at the Union street station. He was committed by Alderman Butler to answer.

A LARGE THEFT.—David F. Bergernus was held on Saturday by Alderman Dougherty on the charge of stealing $230. Defendant, it was alleged, went with complainant to a house in the western part of the city, where the latter became intoxicated, and while in that condition the robbery was committed.

SUICIDE.-An unknown man, aged about sifty years, and dressed in a genteel suit of black was found yesterday morning near the farmhouse on the Almshouse grounds. The top of his head had been blown off by a pistol, which was found in his hand. No papers or marks on his clothing could be found that would give a clue to his name or residence. The Coroner held an inquest, and took charge of the body.

ACCIDENT .- Yesterday morning William Greenman, aged thirty years, fell from a thirdstory window of his residence, No. 460 N. street, and injured himself so seriously that he FALL.-John Sitter fell from the roof of a building on the Haverford road, at Fortieth street, and broke his collar-bone, besides otherwise injuring himself.

The Romance of Sign-Boards.-The most expensive sign ever painted, appears to have been one by Clarkson, a picture of Shakespeare, for which he was paid $500. Besides this master, and Hogarth, whose "Man loaded with mischief" is still to be seen at No. 414 Oxford street, signs were painted by John Baker, Charles Catton, John Baptist, Cipriani, Samuel Wale, Richard Wilson, George Moreland, Ibbetston, David Cox, the elder Crome, Harlow, who appended to his production the initials of Sir Thomas Lawrence, Sir Charles Ross, Herring, and Millais. Great men of former ages, also, are known to have painted signs. In the Museum at Basle, m Switzerland, there are two pictures of a school, painted by Holbein when tourteen years old, for a sign of the schoolmaster of the town. "The Mule and the Muleteer," in the Sutherland Collection, is said to have been painted for Correggio as a sign for an inn. A similar legend is told about the "Young Bull" of Paul Potter in the Museum of Hague, in Hotland, which is reported to have been painted for a butcher's signboard. "The Chaste Susannah" (la Chaste Susanne) was formerly a fine stone bas-relief in the Ru Aux Feves, Paris; it was attributed to Goujon, and bought as such by an amateur. A plaster cast of it now occupies its place. executed a sign for a milliner on the Pont Notre Dame, which was thought sufficiently good to be engraved. Horace Vernet has the ame of having produced some signs in his younger days; and there is still at the present time a sign of the White Horse, in one of the villages in the neighborhood of Paris, which is pointed out as a work of Guericault. According to the list of signs in London for the year 1864, the most common is the "King's Arms," of which the authorsenumerate 89. Next in order comes the "Red Lion," 73. This is an heraldic sign. Doubtless it originated with the badge of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, married to Constance, daughter of Don Pedro the Cruel, King of Leon and Castile. The Duke bore the lion rampant gules of Leon as his cog-nizance, to represent his elaim to the throne of Castile, when that was occupied by Henry de Trastamare. In after years it may often have been used to represent the lion of Scotland. The favorites of sign-boards afford ample scope for the moralist. Perhaps Henry VIII has had a greater share of this kind of posthumous glory than any other man, not even excepting Shakespeare. He is moreover the oldest whose portrait is at all authentic. And he has iasted well down to the present day. Many a "King's Read" still shows traces of "Bluff King

Hal." The authors have hit upon the true reason. 'His personal appearance, doubtless, more than his character as a king, was at the bottom of this popular layer. He locked the personification of joility and good cheer, and when the cvit passions expressed by his face were lost under the clumsy prush of the sign-painter, there remained nothing but a merry, "heart locking," Barchus, eminently adapted for 'beery-looking' Bacchus, eminently adapted for a public-house sign." Pernaps only one sove-reign in the world ever gave origin to so absurd a sign as "Tumbling-down Dick," an konor which belongs to Richard Cromwell.

-Mr. Edmund O'Rourke, better known as Mr Falconer, who was formerly manager of Drury Lane Theatre, London, has just passed his last examination in bankruptcy. He had been eleven weeks in prison, and, as there was no opposition on the part of the creditors, the de-sired order of discharge was granted: -There were 178 divorces in San Prancisco
